The Human Comedy William Saroyan

William Saroyan here introduces his readers to his warm and captivating story of an American family in wartime, and in particular to Homer Macauley, the fastest telegraph messenger in the San Joaquin valley. The Human Comedy is filled with unforgettable scenes: Homer running the 220 hurdles, little Ulysses imprisoned in the bear trap in Covington's store, the old- time telegraph operator Willie Grogan, with a bottle in the drawer to blur the sharp reality of the ever-flowing message of love and hope and pain. In every way this first novel capture the modesty of human beings. It is a simple tale and a very great achievement .
