The ABAS-3 is a rating scale useful for assessing skills of daily living in individuals with developmental delays, autism spectrum disorder, intellectual disability, learning disabilities, neuropsychological disorders, and sensory or physical impairments. Forms in Spanish can be ordered separately. The ABAS-3 covers three broad domains: conceptual, social, and practical, using 11 skill areas within these domains. Tasks focus on everyday activities required to function, meet environmental demands, care for oneself, and interact with others effectively and independently. On a 4-point response scale, raters indicate whether, and how frequently, the individual performs each activity. Skill areas assessed are: Communication Community Use Functional Academics Health and Safety Home or School Living Leisure Self-care Self-direction Social Work Motor Administration and Scoring It takes 15-20 minutes for a rater to fill out the inventory. Ratings from several people will give a more complete picture of how the individual performs in various settings. Raw scores are converted to norm-referenced scaled scores; and for the three adaptive domains and the General Adaptive Composite, standard scores and percentile ranks. Scores can also be categorized descriptively. Includes 25 Print Adult Forms; Print Manual; Unlimited-use Scoring Assistant and Intervention Planner Software (CD and USB Key). Requires Windows 8, 7, or Vista
